SITUATION

Tregilliowe Farm Barn enjoys a wonderfully private setting at the end of a long no-through lane, discreetly tucked away within the beautiful West Cornwall countryside amongst a small hamlet of characterful properties. The nearest village is the popular community of Crowlas, known for its welcoming atmosphere and strong village spirit. Crowlas benefits from a well-regarded local pub, which serves as a popular social hub for both residents and visitors. The village is conveniently situated approximately four miles north-east of Penzance, the historic harbour town overlooking Mount's Bay. Once a thriving market centre, Penzance remains the commercial heart of the Land's End peninsula, offering an excellent range of amenities including supermarkets, independent shops, restaurants, healthcare facilities, and both state and independent schools.

The picturesque harbour town of St Ives, internationally renowned for its golden beaches, thriving arts scene and galleries, is located approximately six miles to the north, making this an ideal base from which to enjoy the very best of West Cornwall. The town also boasts an excellent choice of acclaimed restaurants, cafés and seafood establishments, many positioned to take full advantage of the stunning coastal setting. Just beyond lies the beautiful Carbis Bay, famed for its white sands, crystal-clear waters and spectacular scenery, while nearby West Cornwall Golf Club at Lelant offers one of the country's finest links courses with exceptional views across St Ives Bay.

Approximately two miles to the south lies the ancient market town of Marazion, famed for the iconic St Michael's Mount. At low tide, a historic stone causeway links the mainland to the island, allowing visitors to explore the castle, gardens and grounds, which remain home to the St Aubyn family. Marazion also offers a beautiful sandy beach and is renowned for water sports including sailing, windsurfing and kite surfing. Nature lovers will appreciate the nearby RSPB reserve, providing excellent opportunities for birdwatching and coastal walks. The surrounding area is rich in natural beauty, with numerous scenic walking routes and easy access to the spectacular South West Coast Path.
