Location & Connectivity

Melton Mowbray is an established market town in north-east Leicestershire, serving a substantial rural hinterland. It sits strategically between Leicester, Nottingham, Loughborough, Grantham and Oakham.

The town benefits from the A606 and A607, with the A606 providing connections towards Nottingham and Oakham, and the A607 linking Leicester and Grantham. Other important routes include the A6006, B676 and B6047. The A606 and A607 are identified as primary routes, with the A607 forming part of the Major Road Network.

Although Melton Mowbray is not directly on the Strategic Road Network, it is approximately 10 miles from the A46 to the west and 13 miles from the A1 to the east, giving the town good access to the wider East Midlands and national road network.
