Situated on Burbage Road in Hinckley, this individually built detached bungalow occupies a particularly generous plot and offers spacious, versatile accommodation with considerable potential.

Built by the current owner's father over 55 years ago, the property has remained within the family ever since and provides approximately 1,010 sq ft of accommodation. An L-shaped entrance hallway gives access to all of the principal rooms, including a particularly spacious lounge and a large, fully fitted kitchen with integrated oven and fridge. Adjoining the kitchen is a useful utility room.

There are two well-proportioned main bedrooms together with a smaller third bedroom, ideally suited as a nursery, home office or occasional bedroom. The bathroom is fitted with both a bath and separate shower.

A particular feature is the double garage, which has the benefit of internal access directly into the bungalow, while the driveway provides generous off-road parking for several vehicles.

Outside, the property enjoys a substantial south-facing rear garden, providing an excellent degree of outdoor space and plenty of scope for a new owner to make their mark.

Given the size of the plot, there may also be potential for further development, subject to all necessary planning permissions and consents. Similar use of larger gardens for additional development can be seen within the surrounding area, making this an interesting proposition for buyers wishing to explore the longer-term potential of the site.

A rare opportunity to purchase a long-held family home offering generous accommodation, an exceptionally large garden and exciting potential for the future.
